BOATERS MARKET

Light and Water, in a Jar

In boating, selecting gear with combined functions minimizes weight and space requirements. It also makes the boating experience more satisfying. SolLight picked an unusual way to do just that when they combined a water bottle with a solar-powered deck light. A three-way switch lets you select a red or white LED. Red won't reduce night vision or draw bugs, and it makes a better light for reading charts while underway. The white LED can run up to eight hours before the solar charge runs out. Keep one at the dock and it provides a soft, safe boarding light. Fill it with fresh water to make it a chart weight and just to store an extra liter. Essentials: $24.95, sollight.com
